Foley Kidney Pills are bought in every state in the Union by men and women on the recommendation of those who already have been relieved of kidney trouble and bladder ailments by this sterling family remedy. Comparatively little advertising has been done for Foley Kidney Pills, yet they are well known, and those who know their splendid healing properties never accept an imitation or substitute for the genuine Foley.

Pains Banished; Health Restored

"In September, 1913, I was stricken with lumbago and was unable to turn myself in bed. I was under the care of a physician but obtained no relief. A neighbor brought me a half bottle of Foley Kidney Pills; and she had been similarly afflicted and they had relieved her. So I tried them, and after taking three bottles was well and on my feet. I most heartily recommend Foley Kidney Pills. I have never known them to fail."—Mrs. G. H. Evaland, Duran Mills, Ill.

Shepard, assisted by their son, Ralph Shepard, and wife entertained with a birthday dinner party Tuesday night in honor of their son, DuVoid J., who is home from the U. of M. for the holidays. The center piece of the dinner table was a miniature snow bank with a small Christmas tree on top while at one side was a tiny frozen lake. The guests were enabled to find their places by dainty birthday place cards. The guests were Misses Martha Hetzmann, Margarette Shaver, Marguerite Crawford and Thelma Huntum; Messrs. THE THEATRE

The Idlehour

The management of the Idlehour theater announces that the new Select special attraction, "A Scream in the Night," will be its attraction for Monday and Tuesday. This announcement is of more than passing interest in view of the fact that "A Scream in the Night" takes its place among the greatest pictures made since the inception of the art.

The picture achieves its greatness principally by reason of its unique and powerful dramatic story. Written by Chas. A. Logue, the story is based on the Darwinian theory that man is evolved from monkey.

A cold monster of science, Professor Silvio aspires to prove Darwin right. In accomplishing this he hopes to achieve immortality, for, with Darwin's theory verified, he declares that Adam and Eve will be branded as myths, the foundations of religion will be destroyed and God will be taken from humanity. That will be his immortality, he proclaims.

The experiment with which he hopes to prove Darwin's theory is a wild creature whom he brings up in the jungles. The creature, Darwa, is taken to civilization where society accepts her as a woman. Robert Hunter, a young aristocrat falls in love with her. He is being congratulated by his friends, when Silvio steps in and declares that he is to be congratulated upon the success of his experiment. The creature is not a woman, he explains, but the result of his experiments, therefore, only half human.

Subsequent events seem to bear out Professor Silvio's declarations until the climax is reached when in a most unique and highly dramatic situation Darwa, the wild creature, is pitted against an ape. Gifted with reasoning power, she escapes a fate worse than death by triumphing over the ape, which is shown to have only the power of imitation. It is in this climax that the author refutes Darwin's theory.

The Regent Theatre

How a woman who understands and loves animals can gentle the most savage brute, that would kill anyone else who touched it, is shown in the picture, "Back to God's Country," adapted from the story of "Wapi, the Walrus," by James Oliver Curwood, in "Good Housekeeping" magazine.

Nell Shipman, the leading player, who is a great lover of pets, does not hesitate to put her arms around Wapi, a savage brute, when the dog is making every effort to tear the throats of two traders who are lashing the dog. The dog instantly calms from its insensate fury and permits her to pet it.

The dog later breaks his chain to follow the trail over the ice to the girl, the only person who has been kind to him.

This picture will be shown at the Regent theatre on January 8 and 9.
